DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-17, drawn to a method for preparing an improved Enterobacteriaceae strain and an improved Enterobacteriaceae strain prepared according to the method, classified in class 435, subclass 252.1.
- II. Claim 18, drawn to an isolated nucleic acid comprising the sequence set forth as SEQ ID NO: 1, classified in class 536, subclass 23.1.
- III. Claim 19, drawn to an isolated nucleic acid comprising the sequence set forth as SEQ ID NO: 2, classified in class 536, subclass 23.1.
- IV. Claim 20, drawn to an isolated polypeptide comprising the sequence set forth as SEQ ID NO: 3, classified in class 530, subclass 350.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I is distinct from Inventions II-IV. The method of Invention I is directed to eliminating a plasmid comprising the sequence of Inventions II and III and encoding the polypeptide of Invention IV from Enterobacteriaceae. Although the nucleic acids of Inventions II and III can be used in the method as set forth in the second paragraph on page 10 of the specification, they have separate utility such as for expression of the polypeptide encoded thereby. The polypeptide of Invention III is not disclosed as capable of use in the method of Invention I nor is it produced by the method. With regard to the products encompassed by

Art Unit: 1636

Invention I, the Inventions are clearly distinct because the Enterobacteriaceae strain does not comprise the nucleic acids or protein of Inventions II-IV.

With regard to Inventions II and III, the nucleic acids encompassed are structurally and functionally distinct chemical compounds and are unrelated to one another. These sequences are thus deemed to normally constitute independent and distinct inventions within the meaning of 35 U.S.C. 121. Absent evidence to the contrary, each such nucleotide sequences are presumed to represent an independent and distinct invention, subject to a restriction requirement pursuant to 35 U.S.C. 121 and 37 CFR 1.141 et seq.

The search of the selected sequence may include the complements of the selected sequences and, where appropriate, may include subsequences within the selected sequences (e.g., oligomeric probes and/or primers).

The nucleic acids of Invention II are related to the protein of Invention IV by virtue of encoding the same (indicated at page 4 of the specification). The DNA molecule has utility for the production of the protein in host cells. Although the DNA molecule and protein are related since the DNA encodes the specifically claimed protein, they are distinct inventions because they are physically and functionally distinct chemical entities, and the protein product can be made by another and materially different process, such as by synthetic peptide synthesis or purification from the natural source. Further, the DNA may be used for processes other than the production of the protein, such as nucleic acid hybridization assay.

As the nucleic acid of Invention III is not disclosed as related to the protein of Invention IV, Inventions III and IV are clearly distinct.

Art Unit: 1636

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, or because each of the distinct Inventions comprise distinct elements and therefore cannot be searched coextensively, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
